

From: Rebard@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/16/02 10:12am
Subject: Microsoft SEttlement

I think it is insane to not allow Microsoft to donate software and possibly computers to the schools. Wherever students go, Microsoft is the leader in business and they need to learn it. You are depriving them of this fantastic opportunity. If your objective is to benefit consumers then this is an option.

Apple Computers are a personal choice for households but business uses Microsoft. There is no benefit to students to be taught on Apples and then to enter the marketplace and not have the knowledge of Microsoft. Please reconsider this case on these merits. Thank you. Barbara V. Rebard, Redding Calif.